The scam began when I was approached by an individual named Oliver, claiming to work for a legitimate company based in France. She offered investment opportunities with promises of high

Contacts and general information about me

Oliver's professional demeanor and convincing pitch led me to invest a small amount. In the beginning, I was able to withdraw small sums of $500, which built my trust in the company. Encouraged by this, I decided to invest larger amounts and eventually ended up putting in $70,000. Things seemed fine until I tried to withdraw a larger sum. At that point, Oliver and her team told me I needed to deposit an additional $6,000 to complete the transaction. They assured me this was necessary to finalize the process. Trusting them, I complied, but when I attempted to withdraw my supposed profit of $153,000, my account was suddenly blocked. It was then that I realized I had been scammed. I provided evidence to the company, including wire transfer details and recorded conversations with the scammer, but they refused to release my funds. As communication ceased altogether, I was left devastated, feeling helpless and unable to recover my hard-earned money. Desperate, I reached out to both the FBI and Interpol.

While they were supportive, they warned me about the complexities of investigating international financial crimes. In my search for a solution, I was referred to HACKATHON TECH SOLUTIONS, a team specializing in tracking and recovering stolen funds. Initially skeptical, I decided to give them a chance after seeing positive reviews. To my relief, they proved to be a beacon of hope. Their team was professional, transparent, and thorough, keeping me updated at every step. Thanks to their expertise, they successfully recovered the entire $76,000 I had lost. I'm sharing my story to warn others about the dangers of investment scams and stress the importance of doing thorough research before trusting anyone with your money. If you find yourself in a similar situation, recovery is possible with the right help. In my case, HACKATHON TECH SOLUTIONS made that recovery a reality, and I'm incredibly grateful for their support. Reach out to HACKATHON TECH SOLUTIONS via
